Cantor Colburn LLP Strengthens Detroit Office with New Partners Edmund Anderson, Karl Barr and Scott McBain

Detroit, Mich.-- Cantor Colburn announced today the addition of new partners Edmund P. Anderson, Karl F. Barr and Scott A. McBain to the Detroit office. Mr. Anderson comes to the firm from Dickinson Wright PLLC, where he was a member; Mr. Barr comes from General Motors Corporation, where he was Intellectual Property Counsel; and Mr. McBain comes from Delphi Corporation where he was Intellectual Property Counsel.

“Ed, Karl and Scott are greatly esteemed intellectual property lawyers, with phenomenal leadership experience, who we’ve known professionally and personally for years,” said Philmore H. Colburn II, Co-Managing Partner. “As new partners at Cantor Colburn, they demonstrate to our clients in the Midwest that we have a serious commitment to growing our practice in this area.”

About the Lawyers

Edmund P. Anderson joins the firm as a partner in the Detroit office. He focuses his practice on metallurgy and materials science in a wide variety of applications, including the automotive, aerospace and defense and biomedical arts, as well as the electrical, electro-mechanical and mechanical arts generally. In addition to patent prosecution, he also devotes a significant portion of his practice to client counseling, product clearance investigations and opinions and IP transactions, including due diligence and the drafting and negotiation of a various IP agreements. Mr. Anderson has extensive in-house experience, having previously managed the IP for multi-billion business units of several Fortune 100 companies, as well as extensive private practice experience as a former partner in the IP practice group at Dickinson Wright PLLC. He received a J.D. from William Mitchell College of Law; his undergraduate degree is in Metallurgical Engineering from Michigan Technological University. Mr. Anderson is admitted to the bar in Michigan, Minnesota and the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office.

Karl Barr joins the firm as a partner in the Detroit office. Formerly Intellectual Property Counsel at General Motors Corporation, Karl has focused his efforts counseling GM Management regarding all aspects of complex intellectual property transactions, procurement, as well as portfolio management and monetization strategies. His clients have most recently included GM’s Global Powertrain Operations and Fuel Cell Research and Development Activities. Karl has hands on multinational experience in, and his practice continues to focus on, intellectual property transactions, monetization, licensing and sale, as well as the advance development, assessment and acquisition of new technologies and technology property rights.
