Greater Hartford Arts Council Comes to Cantor Colburn for Workplace Campaign for the Arts

Hartford, Conn. -- Cantor Colburn LLP hosted a Workplace Campaign for the Arts in its Hartford office to raise money for the Greater Hartford Arts Council and raise awareness about the events, performances, and educational opportunities offered by arts and cultural heritage organizations in the greater Hartford area. The Greater Hartford Arts Council is a nonprofit organization that provides grant support to more than 150 arts and heritage organizations throughout the capital region.

Michael Cantor, co-managing partner of Cantor Colburn LLP, introduced the guests: Jane Penfield, assistant director of workplace giving, Luiselle Rivera, workplace giving coordinator, and Michelle Colletti, founder and former executive director of Footlights Center, an after-school arts program in downtown Hartford. Guitarist Lorena Garay performed for the 100+ Cantor Colburn employees who attended the event.

“It’s great fun to host this event for the Greater Hartford Arts Council and the diverse organizations they support,” said Mr. Cantor. “Our employees are very generous—we all enjoy supporting the arts.”

“GHAC hands us a workplace campaign on a silver platter,” said Director of Marketing Jessica Lister. “Every detail is attended to with professionalism and cheer. They make it fun, easy, and we know it makes a big difference not only for the organizations we’re supporting, but also for our work community.”
