Cantor Colburn LLP Co-Managing Partner Michael A. Cantor Makes Presentation in Tokyo to Shiga International Patent Firm

Hartford, Conn.-- Michael Cantor, co-managing partner at Cantor Colburn LLP, intellectual property attorneys, made a presentation to a full house of over two-hundred Japanese patent attorneys and professionals at the prestigious Shiga International Patent Office in Tokyo, Japan today. The Shiga firm is the largest patent law firm in Japan.

Mr. Cantor, who is also an adjunct professor teaching patent law at the University of Connecticut School of Law, discussed recent developments in United States patent law.

"It was an honor to speak with the leading patent attorneys in Japan," said Mr. Cantor. "Japan is a very important market, and we are eager to pursue opportunities to strengthen our business partnerships there."

Cantor Colburn has worked with Shiga for many years, handling patent matters in the United States. Lead by Dan Lent, a partner in the firm, Cantor Colburn's Japanese practice group is growing. Mr. Lent worked as a patent attorney in Tokyo, and has many years of experience assisting Japanese clients. Mr. Cantor and Mr. Lent also visit many regions of Japan frequently to meet with their clients and colleagues. Mr. Lent recently spent three weeks visiting the firm's numerous clients in Japan.

"Because we have been fortunate enough to live and work in Japan, we understand the expectations and the cultural differences," added Mr. Lent.
