The law on § 101 following the U.S. Supreme Court's seminal Alice ruling has been a murky morass to navigate. In-House Best Practices: Strategies for Adapting to a Rapidly Changing Environment

Patent owners have experienced unprecedented change over the past several years. The legal landscape continues to quickly evolve in areas such as patent eligibility, willfulness, litigation remedies, and PTAB proceedings. At the same time, more is demanded from IP departments with fewer resources, thereby necessitating efficient budget management and data-driven decision making. Panelists will provide advice for navigating this challenging environment, including best practices for in-house counsel and tips for outside counsel to better serve their clients.

Determining FRAND Royalties in SEP Litigation

Wireless devices, particularly smartphones, are the nexus for a large proportion of the world's patent licensing, monetization, and litigation activities. The FRAND regime lies at the foundation of all these activities, but despite its superficial simplicity, debates rage on about how to determine royalties in these cases. Panelists will explore current issues regarding how royalties involving standard essential patents having FRAND-based commitments are debated, determined, and decided.

Biosimilar Litigation

Enacted in 2010, the Biologics Price Competition and Innovation Act (BPCIA) created a regulatory pathway for approving biosimilar versions of innovative biologics, and included a complex litigation mechanism for resolving patent disputes known as the "patent dance" that was recently addressed by the U.S. Supreme Court in Amgen v. Sandoz. Litigation under the BPCIA is increasing, and the first approved biosimilar products are providing further guidance as to how these cases will proceed. Panelists will explore the impact of the Court's decision on biosimilar litigation, relevant Federal Circuit decisions, and the increasing use of USPTO post-grant proceedings.
