Cantor Colburn Hires Bomzer and LaMontagne, Former In-House Attorneys at Aetna and United Technologies Research Center

Hartford, Conn. – Cantor Colburn LLP is proud to announce that it has hired attorneys David Bomzer and Troy LaMontagne as Counsel in the firm's Hartford office. Both attorneys bring significant in-house experience, at Aetna, Pratt & Whitney, and United Technology Research Center.

David Bomzer

David Bomzer has served as both in-house and outside counsel to some of the largest and most recognizable Fortune 500 companies. In these positions, he has been responsible for developing, coordinating and executing all aspects of patent protection strategies among global teams of business and technology hubs. In addition, he has developed objectives and procedures for identifying and protecting high value technology assets, and organized and led teams of technology leaders, who assisted in coordinating enterprise-wide protection efforts. Mr. Bomzer also managed patent procurement efforts by in-house and outside counsel. He has drafted and prosecuted patent applications in the mechanical, electro-mechanical, telecommunication arts, to name a few, and participated in various post grant reviews. Mr. Bomzer teaches Cyber Law at Quinnipiac University School of Law as an Adjunct Professor. He has a B.S. in aerospace engineering from the State University of New York at Buffalo, an M.S. in mechanical engineering from the NYU-Tandon School of Engineering (formerly Polytechnic Institute), NY, and a J.D. from the Benjamin N. Cardozo School of Law.

Troy LaMontagne

Troy LaMontagne concentrates his practice on domestic and international intellectual property procurement, prosecution, transactions and licensing. He counsels clients on and IP strategy development toward the development, protection and enforcement of IP assets. Mr. LaMontagne has more than 16 years' diverse firm and in-house counsel experience as well as 15 years' professional engineering experience. During more than 10 years at United Technologies Corporation, he provided all aspects of IP legal support to a large variety of business segments covering the fire, security, HVAC, and elevator businesses. Mr. LaMontagne has a B.S. in electrical engineering from Rochester Institute of Technology and a J.D. from Western New England College School of Law.
