Cantor Colburn is the Fourth Largest U.S. Design Patent Law Firm

Cantor Colburn is the fourth largest design patent law firm in the U.S. according to the blog Ant-Like Persistence ("2018 Design Patent Toteboard," March 29, 2019). Cantor Colburn's Design Patents Practice Group, whose members are experts in providing IP services in the design space, has been nationally ranked for its success in obtaining design patents for more than a decade. Cantor Colburn partners Daniel Drexler and Daniel Gibson co-chair this very active practice group and are well-known practitioners of this area of intellectual property law.

"We recognized some time ago that our clients were expending significant resources developing the 'look and feel' of their products. Design patents offer robust protection in this space, which is something we are always looking to provide," said Mr. Gibson.

"It's an honor to be ranked year after year in the top five of all firms filing design patents," said Mr. Drexler. "This illustrates our expertise in the subject area and demonstrates our client's continued willingness to entrust us with their design cases."

Cantor Colburn is the third largest utility patent law firm in the U.S., as published by IP Law360 and Ant-like Persistence, and the eighth largest trademark law firm, also published by Ant-like Persistence.
